"The Hands of Liszt"

HANDS that caressed the keys of the piano, drawing from the instrument the sobbing beauty of a nocturne or awakening Jovian thunders of tonal splendor. Sensitive hands, that express in their vital beauty the nobility and poetry of one of the greatest pianists the world has ever known. ~ It was of the Chickering that Liszt wrote the most convincing and significant testimonial ever given to any piano maker.

"To be just I must declare them perfect, and perfectissmes (superlatively perfect). There is no quality which is foreign to them. Your instruments possess, in the supreme degree, nobility and power of tone, elasticity and security of the touch, harmony, brilliancy, solidity, charm and prestige; and thus offer a harmonious ensemble of perfections, to the exclusion of all defects."

Liszt.

To become the owner of a Chickering is a matter easily arranged. Your local Chickering representative will gladly inform you as to convenient terms of payment and the value of your present piano in exchange. The Chickering is also obtainable with the Ampico.

Musical Education in America; Points on Choosing a Teacher

THE large music centers of America afford the student of today every facility for pursuing his education in whatever branch he may elect to follow. Every city of any importance has teachers and schools that are well equipped and qualified, but it remains for the student himself to exercise discretion and seek expert advice in choosing the teacher best suited to his own needs. Parents, too, should use the same care in directing or supervising a child's music studies as they would if he were to be directed along some more usual line, such as law or medicine. In fact, much greater care is needed in the case of the musical aspirant, inasmuch as there are no legal standards for the teacher of music.

¶ There is no period in the life of the pupil more critical than the first few years of his tuition, and the wise parent should use particular care to select the best possible teacher. The old fallacy that any teacher will do at the beginning is still too prevalent. The whole system of musical education is changing. The day when training the fingers to play and the eye to read was considered sufficient is now happily passing. The imagination and creative instinct, potential in all children, are now occupying the attention of able teachers. It is also essential to provide the beginner with the best possible instrument on which to practise. With these preliminaries provided for, the pupil, in later years, will be in a position to choose teachers and studies for himself with some degree of assurance.

¶ Conservatory training has advantages, in certain respects, over private tuition, particularly in laying a broad and firm foundation for a future career and in securing a general education, tending toward the making of an intelligent and responsive listener—and the well-educated amateur is the germ of real musical culture. When this foundation has been laid the student may, if he so desires, confine his work to private lessons with some expert, specializing in his chosen field.

¶ One of the most serious mistakes parents and pupils make in choosing a teacher is to take it for granted that a good performer is necessarily a good teacher. Many excellent singers, instrumentalists and composers are failures as instructors, and, on the other hand, some of the finest teachers have never excelled as concert or operatic artists or as composers of particular note. Teaching is an art in itself, and parents and pupils are warned against being hypnotized by names that belong primarily to the stage rather than to the studio. There are, of course, many exceptions to the rule; among the best teachers will be found some who have succeeded equally well on the stage.

¶ Inquiries regarding a teacher should take the form of information as to what he has achieved with his pupils, who his teachers were, and what reputation and standing he has in the profession. This applies whether he is a member of the faculty of a school of music or a private teacher.

¶ Beware of the teacher who promises too much at first. It takes time to find out what a pupil's possibilities are, regardless of what superficial evidences of talent he may show. It takes more than a fine voice to make a great singer; more than a natural technical facility to make a great instrumentalist.

¶ Beware of the teacher who talks "over your head," using an impressive mixture of technical terms and the jargon of musical generalities. The conscientious, capable teacher has reduced his knowledge to simple, understandable terms.

¶ Beware of the teacher who exploits a cut-and-dried "method." No two pupils can be taught in exactly the same way. Any system of teaching must be elastic enough to be adapted to the pupil—not the pupil to the "method."

Summer Music Study in America

SUMMER music study has developed in the last few years into one of the most important phases of musical life in America. The great increase in the number of teachers throughout the country and the eagerness of students to progress as rapidly as possible have served to create a vast army of students who seek the guidance of master teachers for a limited period of specialized study.

¶ New York has long been the Mecca of music students in the winter, but in the summer the pedagogical center shifts somewhat and important courses are given in various parts of the country. Many private teachers remain in New York for special classes and most of the music schools and conservatories outline attractive courses. Among these latter are The American Institute of Applied Music, Columbia University, Dalcroze School of Eurhythmics, David Mannes Music School, Granberry Piano School, Haywood Institute of Universal Song, La Forge-Berúmen Studios, Master Institute of United Arts, New York College of Music, New York University School of Music, Seymour School of Musical Re-Education.

¶ Several of the more important Chicago schools make a special feature of summer study and present an array of names on its faculty of master teachers that would be hard to equal. Three of the most important institutions, in alphabetical order, are The American Conservatory of Music, the Bush Conservatory and the Chicago Musical College. In addition, many private teachers of high standing make Chicago their headquarters during the summer.

¶ Other institutions which give summer instruction include the California Summer Master School of Musical Arts, Los Angeles and San Francisco; Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh; Cincinnati College of Music, Cincinnati Conservatory, Summer Master School of Music, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Cleveland Institute, Cornish School of Music, Seattle; Eastman School of Music, Rochester; McPhail School, of Music, Minneapolis; Peabody Conservatory, in connection with Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore; Adele Sutor School of Music, Philadelphia; Philadelphia Conservatory, University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.; San Francisco Conservatory, School of Fine Arts, Syracuse University.

¶ Among the musicians who give summer classes in the United States as guest members of the faculties of schools and conservatories or privately, are Josef Adler, Clarence Adler, Solon Alberti, S. Avitabile, Mona Bates, Mrs. W. E. Bacheller, Marie B. Benchley, Alberto Bimboni, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bloch, Manly Price Boone, Bessie Bowie, W. S. Hints for Prospective Concert Artists

IT is impossible to lay down any hard and fast rules for the guidance of young artists who feel themselves ready to embark upon a professional career. As in other fields, personality, individuality and "fate" often play the most unexpected rôles in furthering the ambitions of those who seem to have been born under a lucky star.

¶ The day is past, fortunately, when the student expected to step from the studio to stardom by way of one of New York's concert halls or the Metropolitan Opera House. In no other field is experience and thorough preparation more necessary than in the musical realm, and it has been noted in recent years that those who make the most successful débuts in New York have had several years' experience in the provinces, and in some instances, are already well-known concert artists.

¶ It is not necessary to begin in a big manner in order to reach the top. "One step at a time" should be the motto of every beginner. Begin where you are and the next step will present itself as soon as you are ready for it. Build solidly and recognition must come in the measure of your gifts. Too many that promise much bask in the limelight for a short time and then disappear from public sight.

¶ In the beginning, it will probably be possible for the artist to look after the business details personally. He must do this in a business-like manner, overlooking nothing that will further his career. Judicious publicity is of inestimable value, for it keeps managers and those engaging artists acquainted with his activities.

¶ If a New York début is planned, it is well to see that the date does not fall on a day chosen for a musical event of greater importance to the critics, since their opinions form the chief value of the New York appearance. An afternoon in the early part of the week is generally considered most favorable for making a début, since the critics are more apt to be free than later in the week. If the recital is a success, it will not be difficult for the artist to become associated with a concert management, which will take charge of bookings, advertising and publicity.

¶ If the singer aspires to sing in opera, he should be thoroughly prepared in several rôles before applying for a hearing. Great strides have been made in the field of opera in this country in the last year or two and more avenues are being opened to the young artist who is well-equipped. The Metropolitan Opera House has long been the highest symbol of operatic art in this country, but it should be the ultimate goal of the aspirant rather than the first place of endeavor. Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Milwaukee and many other cities afford opportunities for gaining stage experience, in addition to those open to Americans in the Chicago Civic Opera Company, Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera companies, the Ravinia Opera Company, the Hinshaw companies and other organizations. A list of companies appears on page 288.

Making a Concert Début in New York

A NEW YORK concert début is one of the most trying ordeals which faces a young artist. The country looks for the New York stamp of approval on artists and the managers base their advertising and publicity campaigns largely on the opinions of the critics of the metropolitan dailies.

¶ There is a definite routine for the New York recital and a certain expense connected with it which the débutant must be prepared to accept. Concerts which do not follow the established procedure are stamped as amateur and not taken seriously either by the New York critics or the local managers. An artist may, of course, arrange his own début recital, but a manager who knows every detail will probably save him time and money. There is, too, a certain prestige attached to the names of the dependable managers and a professional atmosphere in the débuts they sponsor.

¶ The cost of a New York recital depends on the hall in which it is given and on the amount of advertising the artist wants to use. Conservative advertising and publicity is more advisable for new artists, for over-advertising of an unknown artist has often proved disastrous.

¶ Aeolian Hall and Town Hall have been used almost exclusively for débuts, but next season the new Steinway and Chickering Halls, which are smaller and more intimate, will house a number of first concerts. Prices quoted for début recitals in Aeolian or Town Hall, where the rental is $250, are under $500 for an afternoon concert and under $550 for an evening. Piano recitals are from $75 to $125 cheaper than song or violin recitals, since it is not necessary to pay an accompanist. Steinway Hall next season will rent for about $85, which includes the use of a Steinway piano, although any other make may be used in the hall, and Chickering Hall, which is smaller, charges $60. This brings the cost of a recital down to about $350. Carnegie Hall rents for $350 but the house claims a percentage on all box-office sales over $1,000. Carnegie Hall, however, is too large and usually considered too pretentious for the débutant.

¶ A manager's expense sheet for a recital includes the following items:

Hall Rental	$250
Manager's Fee	100
Newspaper Advertising (Minimum)	100
Hall Program Advertising.....	25
Accompanist	100
Advance Programs	25
Word Books	40
Mailing (Envelopes and Postage).....	25

¶ Theaters are occasionally used for Sunday or afternoon concerts and the smaller halls, like Rumford Hall and the Carnegie Chamber Music Hall, sometimes house début recitals, although they are not always "covered" by all the papers. With the present overcrowding of the concert field, there are few début recitals which receive more than a perfunctory notice. Unless a début is given on an evening when the opera or the symphony concerts are unimportant from a critical standpoint, the début is usually reviewed by the second critics of the daily papers.

¶ New York critics, despite the heavy pressure under which they work, seldom overlook an important début or slight an artist of real promise. On the other hand, they do not often criticize débutants severely unless they are obviously unfitted for a professional career. A New York appearance must be seriously considered by the young artist. It is costly and the standard is high. Mediocrity is ignored and only a débutant of outstanding talent will find it profitable.

Musical Managers and How They Operate

THE booking managers, most of whom are situated in New York City, with their lines of communication all over the country from coast to coast, comprise the great central force through whose instrumentality artists are engaged for appearances in every part of the United States.

¶ These booking managers are linked in business relations with local managers and clubs located in all the towns wherever concerts may be given, for it is their task to "sell" musical performances to the local concert-goers. The terms under which these contracts are made vary considerably, as the rank of the artist is an important factor in the negotiations. The usual plan is for the booking manager to charge the artist a commission, ranging from fifteen to twenty-five per cent on the fee paid to the artist.

¶ The following is a list of these managers. The address in each case is New York unless otherwise stated:

H. J. Andersen, 67 E. 55th St.
 Walter Anderson, Inc., 5 Columbus Circle.

CECIL ARDEN

Contralto
of the Metropolitan Opera Company
(Reengaged Season 1925-26)

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—

"Personality plus artistry is demonstrated by the singer. Charming in appearance and manner, wholly gracious, and of the nicest poise exhibited by any artist in New Orleans in a long time."

TAMPA, FLA.—

"Never before has an artist been accorded such a flattering reception in Tampa. Through her singing she helped to lift the veil a little and permit a deeper vision into the infinite chamber of life's mysteries. Her distinct charm lies in that she has the gift of the true artist of bringing vivid pictures before her audience through the medium of her songs."

GREELEY, COLO.—

"It was declared by everyone who heard Miss Arden to be the best number of the series this year."

As a special number on her programs, Miss Arden is featuring CARMEN'S DREAM in costume—a fantasy for voice and piano based on the themes of Bizet's Carmen—Especially arranged for Miss Arden by Buzzi-Peccia.

Miss Arden has appeared in 47 concerts this season and is already engaged for 52 recitals during 1925-1926.

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI

says:

February 23, 1923.

Dear Mr. Proschowsky—

Having been associated with you for the past eight weeks, let me express my appreciation of your thorough understanding of the TRUE ART of singing and the intelligent simplicity of your elucidations, through which I have been able to discover and use new beauties in my own voice. It is with a feeling of great satisfaction that I commend to you those artists and students who seek the truth in singing—the beautiful and lasting art of "BEL CANTO." Gratefully yours,

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI.

October 16, 1923.

Mr. William Mac Phail,
Mac Phail School of Music,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Mr. Mac Phail:

I am much interested to learn that Franz Proschowsky will teach a master class at the Mac Phail School of Music next June. I first met Mr. Proschowsky through Josef Lhevinne, the pianist, and read a book of his, then in M.S., entitled The Way to Sing. I found that his ideas were so nearly my own that I became interested in him to the extent of inviting him to be my "critic" and advisor. I found him to possess the keenest ear I have ever encountered and an exact and thorough knowledge of the precious art of bel canto. He revealed to me new beauties in my own voice and I do not hesitate to say that his understanding of the voice is so thorough and his elucidation given with such definite simplicity that his is the finest vocal understanding of which I have knowledge.

Believe me,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) A. GALLI-CURCI.

DOROTHY MILLER DUCKWITZ

PIANIST

Second New York Recital

A SIGNIFICANT SUCCESS!

Aeolian Hall, Feb. 12, 1925

" . . . In her Chopin group Miss Duckwitz showed what she really could do. A large audience recalled her. . . . Miss Duckwitz found herself in her element in MacDowell's third sonata. Something in the composition appealed to her instincts and she became quite atmospheric."—New York Times, Feb. 13, 1925.

" . . . Good piano touch and is evidently a very serious artist."—W. J. Henderson, New York Sun, Feb. 13, 1925.

" . . . Ample energy and technical skill."—New York Herald-Tribune, Feb. 13, 1925.

" . . . She is very much worth-while and played her Chopin group very well indeed. She showed grasp, technic, intelligence, beyond the mere notes, and she seemed to impress her large audience."—Theodore Stearns, New York Morning Telegraph, Feb. 13, 1925.

" . . . Showed a fine ability to create a mood with her playing of passages marked by sobriety and lyricism. . . . Displayed deftness in clarifying sonata form. The Chopin was searchingly played. . . . The artist deserves especial commendation for including the MacDowell work, which was well played. Miss Duckwitz achieved her best effects in the flowing measures of Debussy's 'En Bateau,' and the same composer's 'Cortège' was spirited and delightfully given."—Musical America, Feb. 21, 1925.

" . . . Admirable command of technic. . . . Genuine feeling and interpretation . . . Subtle and well blended tone colors."—Musical Courier, Feb. 19, 1925.

Unique in the Concert Field

Her problem must have been, when compiling her selections, to determine the work which best stands for the genius of each man or woman; and she managed to pick out something strong and interesting in every case, without having too many numbers of the concert-worn type.—Winthrop P. Tyron, in the Christian Science Monitor, Jan. 9, 1925.

RICHARD
BYK

Polish Pianist

New York and Chicago Recitals
April 7 and May 11

Significant Successes!

New York Times, April 8, 1925

Mr. Byk is not only the possessor of a brilliant technique, but he can call upon a great diversity of moods. . . . His Chopin was altogether poetic and delectable that touched the heart and calmed the spirit. . . . Mr. Byk received great applause.

New York American, April 8, 1925.

A musician who has encompassed much. . . spirit, poetry and dashing style.—Grenna Bennett

Chicago Evening Post

"Mr. Richard Byk is a pianist of quality. In his playing there was imagination, tonal beauty and technical brilliance. Grainger's arrangement of an Irish Tune he made charming. . . . Debussy's strange harmonies he sent out with swishings and sizzlings that sounded most suggestive, and he did it with an air that kept your mind on the music and not on his display of digital dexterity."—Karleton Hackett.

Chicago Daily Journal

"Richard Byk is two kinds of a pianist: a good one and an interesting one. . . . What Mr. Byk does see in music, besides that fascinating and endless truculency, is structure and form. . . . He is more than simply a great technician; he has grasped the fundamentals of a fine musical style, and these he presents with dignity, brilliance, delicacy and an adequacy which is somehow impersonal. . . ."—Eugene Stinson.

YOUR VOICE AND YOU

(What the singer should do)

By CLARA KATHLEEN ROGERS

(Clara Doria)

Price, $1.75 net

A condensation of what Philip Hale has said: in the Boston Herald. Clara Kathleen Rogers has written a book, small in size, but weighty in matter, concerning the application of psychology to singing.

Her experience in operas, concerts and as a teacher, with her native mentality, leads her to lay down rules, not dogmatically, but with recognized authority!

There are chapters on breath control, consonants, vowels, the legato in speech, tone-attack, resonance—liberation of consciousness. The summary of principles, Chapter XIII, is an excellent condensation of what has been said before. There are also maxims that should be pondered! There is an interesting chapter on nervousness and stage-fright.

Young singers who might please as lyric interpreters but are bound to be dramatic at any cost, singers with pleasing voices for the gentler sentiments and emotions (who see themselves as Aïdas, Bruennhildas, Isolde and Dornas Annas) should read and re-read the chapter entitled "Two Distinct Types of Voice."

This new addition to Mrs. Rogers' previous works—"The Philosophy of Singing," "My Voice and I," "The Voice in Speech," "English Diction in Song and Speech," and her "Memories of a Musical Career"—should be of service to teachers as well as singers.

"I am delighted with the contents of Your Voice and You, which covers the whole ground in clear and concise statements, leaving no doubt in the reader's mind as to the author's meaning."—CHARLES A. WHITE, Voice teacher, Boston.

"I shall treasure the book because of the wealth of wisdom that is in it and shall keep it within reach of my piano where I can quote from it to my pupils and transmit to them in the author's own words the fruit of her long and intelligent experience."—FRANCIS ROGERS, Baritone and voice teacher, New York.

"I have read the book with the keenest interest. It is full from beginning to end of ideas to which I enthusiastically subscribe. For many years I have been fighting with voice and pen the mechanical systems of voice training, the basis of which is 'direct control.' Hence I deeply appreciate Mrs. Rogers' vision and her clear and definite manner of expression."—D. A. CLIPPINGER, Voice teacher and conductor, Chicago.

Frank SHERIDAN

"An Excellent Pianist"

Frank Sheridan challenged consideration last night as a balanced and matured artist, whose musical ideals do him credit and whose attainments ought to gain him a conspicuous place. His performances disclosed in every case a thorough soundness of conception, a clean and ample technic and a notable instinct for the singing qualities of the piano. On the whole his playing is of a strongly romantic cast, but his taste preserves him against sentimental excesses and he has a healthy vigor at his disposal. (Herbert F. Peyser, N. Y. Telegram-Mail, February 27, 1925).

MUENZER TRIO

(FOUNDED BY HANS MUENZER 1918)

Hans Muenzer, Violin Hans Koelbel, Cello Rudolph Wagner, Piano

"I can ask for no finer chamber music playing. . . . They are three artists in truest significance of the word."—Chicago Evening American.

"In all respects a high grade of musicianship."
—Edward Moore, Chicago Tribune.

"A genuine chamber music organization. . . .
A trio of real quality. . . . Young, but made of the right stuff."
—Karleton Hackett, Chicago Eve. Post.

"The spirit and enthusiasm of youth with the insight and judgment of maturity."—Glenn Dillard Gunn, Chicago Herald and Examiner.

"A perfection of ensemble. . . . It is a genuine treat to hear."
—Maurice Rosenfeld, Chicago Daily News.

Of the good qualities of this trio almost the best is the perfect unison achieved when unison is needed. Almost effortless, also, were the climaxes, indicating a mastery of the medium.

"You may quote me," said W. W. Norton, director of the Flint Community Music Association, immediately after the concert, "as saying anything you want about this group. I think they are far superior to anything in their line that I have ever heard. I think they are far superior to the Flonzaley quartet, for instance, especially in purity of tone."
—Flint, Mich., Daily Journal.

"The same luscious velvety voice that made many friends last year. She is a delightful artist. Four distinctive groups were given with fine musical utterance and faultless diction."—Grena Bennett, New York American, November 12, 1924.

"She sang with marked intelligence, voicing not only the composers' phrases but the spirit of the text, and this without affectation, without churned-up emotion, without the feigned lightness in the more lively measures, the lightness that does not deceive."—Philip Hale, Boston Herald, December 10, 1924.

I Hear America Singing

CANTATA for MIXED VOICES

by

HARVEY B. GAUL

15 Minutes—$.60 List

WILL EARHART WRITES:

"I predict that I HEAR AMERICA SINGING will come to hold the place in America that Elgar's 'Pomp and Circumstance' and the vocal arrangement 'Land of Hope and Glory' hold in England. It is a work of originality and much distinction. It has big-ness and the qualities of permanency in it."

DORIS DOE

Contralto

"Doris Doe wrote her début in capital letters at Aeolian Hall last evening with that excellent thing in a woman, a low, sweet voice, a 'voice with a smile' that ranged so lightly from an air of old Marcello to a pair of Geni Sadero's Italian folk songs.

ANNA HAMLIN

Coloratura Soprano

CHICAGO TRIBUNE—Riviera Supplement, Cannes, March 7, 1925:

Miss Hamlin gave an excellent program of songs in three languages, in which her pronunciation was as near perfect as a foreigner can attain. In Italian, she was most pleasing in a pastoral by Veracini; France was well represented in Chopin, Bizet and Gounod; while the mother tongue had a large share in the honors. Her voice is fresh and charming at all times.

Some Representative Music Teachers

THE vast musical expansion of the past few years, owing to the general recognition of music as an indispensable factor in American life, resulted in a large influx of persons into the profession of music teaching. Most of these instructors are reliable and competent, but the fact cannot be disguised that many irresponsible persons have taken advantage of the widespread interest in music and have launched themselves upon "teaching" careers with one idea: money-making.

The municipal authorities of New York City recently took steps to license music teachers. The Mayor of New York appointed a committee. Several sessions were held which prominent members of the profession attended, but owing to the divergence of opinion, the suggestive plans to license or register vocal teachers, as the beginning of a general reform, was not adopted.

So many appeals have come to the editors of MUSICAL AMERICA that MUSICAL AMERICA'S GUIDE resolved to compile a selected roster of representative instructors. Obviously, we cannot assume that the following list is complete.

Festivals and Music Weeks

IN compiling the appended lists of music festivals, local music weeks and their conductors or chairmen, it has been considered impracticable to state the exact dates on which these performances would occur; therefore, in some instances, the month only is given.

In many cases music weeks have supplanted festivals, therefore this list presents the dates of both the music weeks and the festivals.

The HARDMAN

...fourteen years in continuous service at the Metropolitan

The accompanying letter from Signor Giulio Gatti-Casazza, General Manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is eloquent proof of the Hardman's enduring beauty and fidelity of tone.

METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE

GIULIO GATTI-CASAZZA
GENERAL MANAGER

New York, March 21, 1925

Gentlemen:

After fourteen years of our very cordial association, I wish to reassert my pleasure at the satisfaction the Hardman Pianos have given us, and wish to re-emphasize my appreciation of the tone quality, durability and the splendid workmanship of your admirable instrument.

We feel confident that this complete satisfaction will be continued next season as heretofore.

Yours very sincerely,

METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY
GIULIO GATTI-CASAZZA
General Manager

Messrs. Hardman, Peck & Co.
433 Fifth Avenue
New York City

During fourteen years of uninterrupted and satisfactory service the merit of the Hardman has been tested and proven in that highest, most difficult of musical tribunals... For fourteen consecutive years the Hardman has been chosen from all the pianos of the world as the Official Piano of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Signor Gatti-Casazza, Impresario and

Managing Director of the Metropolitan Opera House, showed the same ability in the selection of its Official Piano as in the preparation of each season's repertoire.

Under his distinguished tutelage the Metropolitan Opera Company—the world's greatest musical organization—and the Hardman—the world's most enduring piano—have grown to fame together.
